GUIDANCE FOR AUTHORS

Selection criteria

The criteria for selection are scientific excellence, originality and interest across disciplines within biology. Papers are assessed by the Editorial Board for suitability before full peer-review. Their recommendations are passed to the Editor. The Editor is responsible for all editorial decisions and he makes these decisions based on the reports received from the referees and the Editorial Board.

Publishing format

Biology Letters are published regularly online and in bimonthly print issues. Along with all Royal Society journals, we are committed to archiving and providing perpetual access. Although the printed version of Biology Letters is limited to 2500 words, there is the facility for Electronic Supplementary Material (ESM). Contents of the ESM might include details of methods, derivations of equations, large tables of data, DNA sequences and computer programs. However, the printed version must include enough detail to satisfy most non-specialist readers. Supplementary data up to 10Mb is placed on the Society's website free of charge. Larger datasets must be deposited in recognised public domain databases by the author.

Conditions of publication

Articles must not have been published previously, nor be under consideration for publication elsewhere. The main findings of the article should not have been reported in the mass media. Like many journals Biology Letters employs a strict embargo policy where the reporting of a scientific article by the media is embargoed until a specific time. The Editor has final authority in all matters relating to publication.

Categories

Papers published in Biology Letters will be categorised by subject, which include

- animal behaviour
- biomechanics
- community ecology
- conservation biology
- evolutionary biology
- evolutionary developmental biology
- genome biology
- global change biology
- marine biology
- molecular evolution
- neurobiology
- palaeontology
- pathogen biology
- phylogeny
- physiology
- population ecology
- population genetics

Electronic Submission details

The Royal Society's electronic-submission and peer-review service provides Biology Letters authors with the facility to submit their papers online. The service allows you to upload files in a reliable and user-friendly way, using a Web-based system. When your paper is received, an immediate acknowledgement is sent that details how you can track your contribution online.

For full submission guidelines, further details about the journal and access to all journal content please visit the Biology Letters website at rsbl.royalsocietypublishing.org.

The Royal Society, the national academy of science of the UK and the Commonwealth, is at the cutting edge of scientific progress. We support many top young scientists, engineers and technologists, influence science policy, debate scientific issues with the public and much more. We are an independent, charitable body and derive our authoritative status from over 1400 Fellows and Foreign Members.

During 2010, we are celebrating the Royal Society's 350th anniversary. As part of this, there will be an exciting programme of activities – exhibitions, lectures, conferences, a new book, a vast science festival on the South Bank in London, television and radio broadcasting and much more besides.

Our mission: to expand knowledge and further the role of science and engineering in making the world a better place.

The Royal Society's strategic priorities are to:

- invest in future scientific leaders and in innovation,
- influence policymaking with the best scientific advice,
- invigorate science and mathematics education,
- increase access to the best science internationally, and
- inspire an interest in the joy, wonder and excitement of scientific discovery.

For further information on the Society's activities, please contact the following departments on the extensions listed by dialling +44 (0)20 7839 5561, or visit the Society's Web site (www.royalsociety.org).
